

- When you hear voices, what responses do you think are created in you?
- Do these responses remind you of any other relationships in your life?
- Is there any reason why your threat-response system might be switching on?
- What might your voices be protecting or distracting you from?
- Is there an emotion, a memory, or a part that you might be avoiding?

